Nobody has ever asked for this functionality as the number of users who are allowed to access the system is generally quite small - just the members of staff who need to maintain the data - so the effort in manually entering the details of each user is also small.

The idea that unknown users can register themselves goes against Radicore's security philosophy, so I see no reason to implement such a feature.