It is always possible to show the actual date in a data field instead of a label. That is what I have done in my own timesheet application which I used as a model for FAQ 109.

The contents of the screen structure file is read into $GLOBALS['screen_structure'] at the start of the script, so it is possible for you to amend it before it is written out at the end to the XML file. You will have to step through the array so that you can locate the entry which needs to be amended.
