Upon reflection I have decided to remove that change from the childform() fuction and modify file 'std.add2.inc' so that it reads as follows:

if (!empty($selection) AND !isset($return_from)) { if (empty($where)) { // only use $selection if $where is empty
        $where = $selection;
    } // if
    $selection = null;
} // if
```

This means that regardless of the calling form, $selection will only be used if $where is empty. I think this should cover all eventualities.
