Subject: Re: Help with internationalisation please
Posted by AJM on Tue, 12 Aug 2008 17:25:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

bonzo_bcn wrote on Tue, 12 August 2008 18:08So there are some messages that the user will get in english even though he has another language assigned?
If you read the documentation you should see that text can be made available in any number of different languages, with each set of translations maintained in a totally separate directory whose name is related to the language code. So if one user requires the French language all requests for text will first look in the 'text/fr' subdirectories. This means that several users can each access the same application at the same time but get text in the language which is appropriate to them.

The only time that text will be served up in English instead of the user's language is when a 'text/<language>' directory does not exist in the user's language. This makes English the default language when translations do not exist.