Subject: PDF Document Margin Setup

Tony,

I am producing some output documents that will print on pre-printed stationary. However, the actual result, as to whether or not the fields line up exactly on the document, varies slightly depending on the printer used.

I'd like to be able to set an x and y margin value that can be user adjusted (maybe read from a database table containing printer setups) that could be incorporated into the output documents.

Is there any way this type of functionality can be performed with the existing PDF functions?
