You have summed up the scenario exactly Tony.

I did indeed start by creating separate tasks for each document (it's not just letters actually) and having a separate navigation button for each. However, the number of documents has already grown to 12 and there may be a few more yet, so I was trying to implement a more 'elegant' apprach.

It's nearly there - I get my list of documents, choose one and it prints correctly, but then I am just left with closing the popup manually (plus at the moment I get unexpected results if the user then chooses another selection because the popup is still open).

If it can't be done I'll have to have separate navigation buttons and try and think of another way of reducing the number of buttons.
