There is something invalid which is trying to be inserted into the XML document. The error is triggered in file include.xml.php5.inc at line 395 where it calls the createElement() function. The error log shows that the argument is the value '0' (zero) when it should be a string. It would appear that you have added something to $this->lookup_data without giving it a name. This should be an associative array, not an indexed array.
