When you select occurrences of 'DevicePort' and press a navigation button the framework will extract the primary key from every selected row and place it in the $where string which is passed to the next object. If the primary key of the 'DevicePort' table is 'device_id+port_id' then both values should be included.

If 'port_id' is being excluded then it is one of the following:
(1) It is not defined as part of the primary key, therefore is not being extracted into the $where string.
(2) It is being extracted, but somehow it is being filtered out.

If it is #2 then you will have to step through the code with your debugger so see where it is happening.
