That code causes <COL ALIGN="RIGHT" /> to be inserted into the HTML output, and this has always worked in IE (certainly up to version 7) and Opera. This is in accordance with the HTML specification in section 11.2.4 and 11.3.2.

This does not work in Firefox due to bug#915, and I have just noticed that it no longer works in Safari.

It does not work in Google Chrome due to bug#12094.

I DO wish these browser developers would learn to read the W3C specifications and implement them properly!!!
