Subject: Re: php5 mysql5 database problem
Posted by AJM on Thu, 11 May 2006 08:25:02 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That error message is telling you that the software is looking for a database with the name "audit" which cannot be found. So where did this name come from? The name "audit" is perfectly valid (you did create a database named "audit", didn't you?) but the leading "" leads me to believe that your config.inc file (which was copied from config.inc.default) has the value "" defined for $GLOBALS['dbprefix']. You need to change all the values in config.inc to what is relevant for your installation, especially those currently filled with "".