Coming back to my first question. The batch task that is generated looks as follows:

```
<?php
 //***************************************************** ******************
// run a script in the background
 //***************************************************** ******************

$stdout = '...';
$csvout = '...';
$pdfout = '...';

// ini_set('include_path', '.');
require 'std.batch.inc';

batchInit(__FILE__);

// custom code starts here

// custom code ends here

batchEnd();

?>
```

There are no parameters, respectively where clauses here ...

Thanks and regards
