yes it happens only with one table, but the thing is other users with the same role are able to insert in that table.
and the user that can't insert right now was inserting in the table and then all of the sudden the user couldn't insert anymore.
i have had this problem before and what i did was delete the user and create the user again.
If the user_id and user_name was the same as the old one it didn't work, it did the same thing.
if there was a problem with the coding for the table then no user would be able to insert.
we are running it on a windows server Radicore version 1.75. don't know if that can cause the problem?
