There are 11 examples of the OUTPUT2 pattern in the Radicore download, and in the demonstration application which is available at http://www.radicore.org/demo.php, and none of these have the problem you describe. The problem must be because of code which you have generated, so you need to compare my code (which works) with your code (which fails).

You need to step through with your debugger to find exactly where the faulty output is being generated. I cannot do this unless you send me all of your code, and your database, so that I can run it through the debugger on my PC.
