This sounds like a good idea. I've been working with certain conventions for so long that I hardly feel the need to document them, but for newcomers to Radicore these things may not be so obvious. Some of these items may be mentioned in various parts of the Radicore documentation, but as there are a huge number of documents (which are all obtainable from http://www.radicore.org/documentation.php) it may be difficult to know where to look.

When a new question arises I try to put a link in the FAQ at http://www.radicore.org/viewarticle.php?article_id=23. Another place would be the Programming Guidelines which can be found at http://www.radicore.org/viewarticle.php?article_id=64.

If there are other points like this that you feel need to be highlighted in any documentation then please let me know.
