After I inserted the code to allow the 'ignore_if_empty' option for images I tried testing it in a various combination of scenarios, and I hit a small problem when a cell containing an image was in the same line as one or more other cells containing text. After fixing that problem I thought that all was well, but when I reran your scenario I found that it did not work properly, so that was another problem that needed fixing. All my tests now work, so I think I've fixed everything, but Murphy's Law will probably prove me wrong.
