Why are you defining a field called 'file' in $fieldspec? That is a dummy field that holds nothing but the file name and is read-only, so it does not need any specifications. The only difference between an image picker and a video picker is the screen structure file that I provided previously. In your class file you also need to set $this->picker_subdir to the directory which contains your video files. Those are the only changes I made in my tests, and I do not encounter this error.
