Have you checked that the file is not empty? Can you replace it with the one in the downloaded zip file?

Hi,
I been looking that you suggested, but everything was ok. All the files in place.
I changed my computer lenguaje to english, and now I think where is the error, looking back to the program calls.

Found that probably the problem is with XSL functions. In the include.xml.php5.inc
--> trigger_error(getLanguageText('sys0070', 'XSL'), E_USER_ERROR);
Looking at installation instructions, in point
4. You will need to change permissions so that the following directories have write access:

RADICORE - for the errorlog.html file.
CLASSES - for all <table>.class.inc and <table>.dict.inc files.
ERROR_LOGS - for errorlog.html file.
LOGS - for all output from background tasks.
SQL - for all <subsystem>.dict_export.sql and <subsystem>.menu_export.sql files.
TEXT - for all <subsystem>.menu_export.txt files.
XSL - for all <script_id>.xml files.

Probably that is my problem!
But in my actual windows 10 enviroment and don't know how to do this.
Do I have to change in the httpd.conf?

Thank you for your support!

If you changed your computer language to English, what was it before?

You should not have to change the permissions on those directories if you are running on MS Windows.

I have tried setting my PCÂ´s language to Spanish, and my browser language to Spanish, but I cannot reproduce this fault. Radicore can only support other languages when they have supporting files in the text direcory. Your error message clearly shows that it was looking for the sys.language_text.inc file in the 'menu/text/en' directory, and as that file exists that error should not appear.

You may need to add English as an optional language in your browser.

I think I have found the cause of this error. See the attached zip file for a new version of include.library.inc
